E-Rate has to be available to all eligible schools throughout the nation. As a parent of two elementary school children, I am aware of inequities created by inconsistent access to powerful learning tools and high speed internet. My daughter attends a school where computers are used only for testing because there aren't enough. Two miles away, there is a school where every child takes home a laptop for anytime, anywhere learning. I strongly believe that educational technology can change the world. But we have to fund it appropriately. I urge the FCC to boost E-Rate funding!
